CHINAMEN GLIDE BY 28 ENGINE'S DOOR TO BUTCHER HOP LEE.

Firemen and Policemen Soon on Their Heels and Get Three of the Five After Chase Over Roofs-Supposed to Be On Leong Tong's Vengeance on Hip Sings.

Lee Poy, cousin of Lee Toy, "collector" for old Tom Lee, head of the On Leong Tong, is out on $5,000 bail, and Charley Joe of 101 Ninth avenue is locked up in the Tombs, charged with murdering Hop Lee, a Hip Sing Tong man. There is also a murder charge against Mo Wong, who is in Bellevue Hospital with several broken ribs. Mo Wong belongs to the On Leong Tong and lives across the street from the tong headquarters, at 14 Mott street.

They killed Hop Lee in his laundry, at con East Eleventh street, butchering him with a short meat cleaver, almost under the nose of a policeman. There were five of them, the police say, that had the job of killing Hop Lee in revenge for the murders that the allies of the Parkhurst society committed last Sunday night in the Chinese

Hop Lee was not a fighting man and so far as is known was not mixed up in any of the Chinatown killings, but Tom Lee's men knew him as a schemer and a friend of Mock Duck, who was arrested after the assassinations in the playhouse and is now

Pistols are noisy. A meat cleaver is very effective in the hands of a skilful artist. When Hop Lee died in Bellevue there were fifteen wounds on him, and his nose was gone. The murderers had less than five minutes to work in.

It was about 1 o'clock yesterday morning that five Chinamen shuffled along East Eleventh street past the house of Engine 28, keeping out of the bright light that streamed through a saloon window. Four of them wore blouses, baggy trousers and felt sandals, but Lee Poy wore American clothes. Charley Smith, the engine company's buff, who was sitting on the chain in front of the fire house, saw them glide past, and when Policeman Drescher of the Union Market station came along minute or two later Smith pointed the Chinamen out to him.

"I saw 'em in Tompkins Square," said Drescher. "I'll get around the corner and you keep an eye on them."

The Chinamen had stopped when one of them saw the policeman, but as soon as he turned the corner lazily, with an assumption of indifference, they streaked it for the door of Hop Lee's laundry, half a block from the engine house. They hit the door all together and the lock gave way. mith saw them go in, and he waited for Firescher to appear. When the policeman poxed his head around the corner Smith told him what was up.

Drescher lost no time then, but he was late by fifteen swings of a cleaver. Hop Lee was asleep, probably, when the murderers broke into the dark little laundry. and they went for him quick as cats. They dragged him out of bed, threw him on his froning board and held him down. From the look of things there were two tong men at his head, two at his feet and another scientifically wielding Hop Lee's own cleaver.

They might have killed him at one blow, but they chipped pieces off him, beginning with his nose. Then they worked from his head to his feet, and the laundry was not pretty when Drescher ran in with a fireman or two from the engine company. The men of company 28 slid down the pole in a hurry and poured into the street when their buff told them what he had seen.

The assassins had disappeared when Drescher found Hop Lee groaning in the dark, not dead but nearly. The police-man went up the stairs of the five story building on the jump and found two Chinamen on the roof. One of them ran to the edge of the roof and jumped across a five foot gap to the other building. The other ran around the edge of the roof trying to find a way of escape. Drescher hadn't a club and didn't want to shoot. He went at the Chinaman with his fists and the yellow man closed with him. They fought on the edge of the roof for two or three minutes before Drescher knocked the Chinaman senseless. It was Charley Joe.

Lee Poy was the one who jumped the five foot space between the buildings. Then he ran north on the roof and took a twenty foot drop to the roof of the next building. He was up against it there and had to go down through the scuttle. The firemen, who were in the game for all it was worth, were waiting for him, and they closed in on him. He struggled a second or two, got a black eye and gave up.

Fireman Eichler had used Drescher's dub to rap for help. Policemen Blake was there in a minute or two, and then the cops began to come in squads. The whole neighborhood, largely Yiddish and German, was awake and excited, and Eleventh street was full of lightly clothed men and women who didn't know what had happened and were shouting at the top of their

Lee Poy hadn't any more than surrendered when Fireman Quinn raised the whoop halloo. He saw a Chinaman creeping along an alley wall near the laundry, going on all fours. He got to his feet when he heard Quinn's yell and ran limping up Avenue B to Thirteenth street. There the hue and crv was after him full force and he was nabbed at Avenue A. He was Mo Wong, and he was badly hurt. In trying to escape when Drescher first broke in he fell down a flight of stairs and broke two ribs. Then he hid while the fighting on the roof was going on, waited until Drescher got into the street and got out through a

A Bellevue ambulance took Hop Lee to the hospital. He was conscious, but dying fast. The police got the prisoners to the hospital just before the Hip Sing man died, but he was too far gone to notice any of them of them.

Yesterday morning Charley Joe and Lee Poy were arraigned before Magistrate Mott in the Essex Market court. He remanded them to the Coroner without ball and they were sent to the Tombs. Coroner Brown held Charley Joe, but accepted $5,000 bail for Lee Poy. Pasquale Caponigri was his surety. Caponigri is a banker at 20 Mulberry street.

At the On Leong Tong headquarters yesterday the Chinamen that were smok-ing inside and loafing about the sidewalk seemed to be in a happy humor, but all inquiries as to Lee Poy, Mo Wong and Charley Joe were met with blank looks.

TONG MIDNIGHT MURDER SQUAD WILL PROBE CHINA'S BOYCOTT. State Department Order: U. F. Consuls to Make Investigation. Washington, Aug. 12.—The first step by the United States Government against the boycott of American products by the Chincs has been taken. Orders have been sent from the State Department to all American diplomatic and consular officers in China to make a thorough investigation of the boycott and make reports to the Department as soon as possible. Announcement to this effect was made at the State Department to-day.

That the situation is growing serious is apparent. Protests from American manufacturers and producers are coming to the State Department in increasing volume every day. It is known here that many such protests and requests that this Government take some action to either stop the anti-American movement, or offset it, have been sent to the President at Oyster Bay.

While no announcement has been made to this effect, it is understood here that the State Department is exceedingly anxious to find out just who is responsible for the boycott and to that end the consular and diplomatic officers of this Government have been instructed to investigate.

What the next step will be is not known. This Government has appealed to the Chinese Gove-nment, but no result has come from it. To the State Department it has been suggested by some one whose name is not made public, that the merchants and commercial interests of other countries are the responsible parties. If this is found to be true, this Government will have an active working basis for negotiations to put an end to the boycott.

Despite his emphatic denials, there is also a deep-rooted suspicion that former Min-ister Wu instituted the boycott. If this investigation which is to be made shows this, then the United States can make demands on the Chinese Government, Wu being an official of the Chinese Foreign Office.

DIDN'T BALK AT UNIFORM. Commissioner Sargent Denies Stories About

Inspector Braun's Resignation. WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.-Commissioner of Immigration Frank P. Sargent made a statement to-day in regard to the case of Immigrant Inspector Braun in which he said: "In an interview with me yesterday at Ellis Island Mr. Braun stated that his resignation was tendered on account of personal reasons and not from any dissatisfaction on account of the regulations of the Bureau of Immigration requiring the uniform of the service to be worn by all employees detailed for duty at Ellis Island, nor on detailed for duty at Ellis Island, nor on account of any difference of opinion which he might hold as to the regulations governing the admission of aliens into the United States. He said that the reports representing him as resigning because of his being required to wear a uniform are absolutely without foundation."

The "personal reasons" referred to by Braun in his interview with Commissioner Sargent are understood to relate primarily to the inspector's recent unpleasant experience in Austria-Hungary, where he was arrested, afterward being recalled at the request of the State Department. The Immigration Bureau shared Braun's chagrin when the latter was ordered back after his arrest in Budapest. Braun did good work in the foreign service, and the immigration authorities wanted to keep him there, but the State Department, fearing complications, insisted that Braun should be called off.

WOULD-BE ASSASSIN A LABORER. Man Who Tried to Kill Argentina's President Thought to Be Insane WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.-Arthur M. Beaupré, the American Minister at Buenos Ayres, has made a report to the State Department of the attempted assassination of President Manuel Quintana at the Argentine capital yesterday. According to Mr. Beaupre's de-yesterday. According to Mr. Beaupré's despatch the alleged would-be assassin was Planas Vicella, a laborer. The State Department issued the following bulletin:

"Minister Beaupré has cabled the State Department that Planas Vicella, a laborer, attempted to assassinate the President Friday afternoon as the President's carriage passed Retiro Park. The assailant rushed from behind a monument, revolver in hand, but the President's aide-de-camp threw himself from the carriage upon the assailant, overpowering him before he could shoot. The man, supposed to be insane, has been arrested.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 12.—Going at the rate of a mile a minute and in view of 5,000 people. Earl Kiser, driving the Winton Bullet, dashed into the fence at the Glenville Driving Park this afternoon and was so badly injured that his left leg had to be amputated at the knee.

He was endeavoring to pocket a Peerless car that was following him, when suddenly the Bullet skidded and he lost control. It swerved toward the fence, seemed to jump four feet into the air, and then came down with a crash against the fence, striking it sideways.

A section of the fence thirty feet long was smashed, and the machine, turned completely over, came down upon Kiser, who had fallen to the track.

A cry of horror arose from the great crowd in the grand stand as they saw the accident. Instantly there was a puff of smoke as the Bullet caught fire.

"My God, my leg!" Kiser kept crying. Soon Dr. Lavigne arrived, and Kiser, who remained conscious and apparently indifferent to the pain, retained his pluck. He chewed gum and talked with the doctor, he chewed gum and taked with the doctor, asking if he would lose his leg or if it was only broken. Kiser was rushed to St. Clair Hospital, where his leg was amputated. He lost consciousness on the way to the

KNIFE IN HIS BRAIN.

Eworts of Policeman Simpson to Break Up Gang Results in Attack on Him.

Following an attempt to break up a gang of rowdies, who have been insulting women and keeping the neighborhood awake by yelling and singing, Policeman William Simpson of the Vernon avenue station, was stabbed in the head early yesterday morning, in Sandford street, Brooklyn, and is in the Cumberland Street Hospital Two men have been arrested, but the police are not sure that they have the man who stabbed Simpson. Police Captain Velsor told Simpson, whose beat took in Sandford street, to clear the neighborhood of loungers. Several the neighborhood of loungers. Several arrests were made, and the gang threatened to get even with Simpson. Shortly after midnight yesterday morning, he drove four members of the gang from the stoop of the house at 86 Sandford street, where they were drinking beer and stopping persons in the street. When he returned two hours later, he found that they had come back, and he ordered them to clear out. He told them he would arrest all hands if he found them there again.

Simpson started toward Park avenue, Simpson started toward Park avenue, but had gone only a short distance when one of the gang slipped up behind him and stabbed him in the head, back of the left ear, with a long knife. The force of the blow sent the policeman to the sidewalk, but he recovered sufficiently to crawl to the police patrol box at the corner and call up the station. After telling the man at the desk that he had been stabbed and to send the patrol wagon, Simpson sank unconscious to the sidewalk. The ambulance of the Cumberland Street Hospital and Dr. Clapp arrived at about the same time as the patrol wagon with the reserves. On the way to the hospital Simpson regained consciousness for a minute and said to Dr. Clapp:

"Have them find Roach."

The blade of the knife had gone through Simpson's skull and penetrated the brain.

Capt. Velsor hurried out the reserves to round up members of the Sandford street gang. The first man caught was James Roach, 22 years old, of 202 Spencer street. He was taken to the hospital, where, in a mome one of the men who had been

DIED A MOTHER AT 13 After the Cæsarian Operation-The Child's Girl Baby Survives It.

Helen Elster, who was not 13 years old, died in the Post-Graduate Hospital in East Twentieth street, Thursday night, but her girl baby which came into the world as Cæsar did, is doing well in the hospital and promises to grow up.

The mother was 12 years old Nov. last. She was taken to the hospital last Tuesday by her mother, Mrs. Henry Cubenz, who lives with a second husband on the third floor of the flat house at 304 Pleasant avenue. The woman's first husband died several years ago and left three children besides Helen.

Helen went to live with her aunt, Mrs. Kaless, in Thirty-ninth street near Canarsie lane, Brooklyn, and visited her mother once month or so. A week ago she returned to her mother's after a longer absence than usual. Her mother noticed that she was not looking well and took her to the

When it was discovered in the hospital that the girl was about to become a mother the physicians saw that because of her tender, immature growth her life would probably be sacrificed and they resorted to the Cæsarian operation. The girl lived for ten hours after it.

Brainard G. Smith Buys the Ridgewood

N. J., "Herald." Brainard G. Smith has purchased the Ridgewood, N. J., Herald, and will be its editor hereafter. Mr. Smith was a member of THE SUN'S staff. He left to be Cornell University's professor of journalism. When he quit the university he became the editor of the Ithaca Daily Journal, and he gave up that to buy a paper of his own.

A Furniture Exposition

that embraces every phase of modera woodcraft is shown here to beautiful advantage. Not an accumulation of stockworn and unsalable pieces, but a collection of things that have a meaning for pure design and honest handicraft.
